“We want higher learning opportunities!!”

Imagining what was not yet available to them, women in Fukuoka started their education movement 100 years ago. They yearned for and demanded access to higher education, which was then regarded as unnecessary for women. Among many who echoed the women's aspiration and plea, the Governor of the Prefecture of Fukuoka, as well as the Mayor of the City of Fukuoka, took actions that resulted in the establishment of the very first local public women's college (joshi semmon gakko) in Japan, which became Fukuoka Women's University (FWU) in 1950.

As we celebrate the 100 years of education rooted in the spirit of women who have imagined and worked tirelessly to create “what is not yet”, we are proud to announce the opening of our Women's Leadership Center (WLC). In these times of VUCA (volatility, uncertainty, complexity and ambiguity), the power of imagination—looking beyond the given, beyond what appears to be unchangeable—is of utmost importance in working toward the realization of well-being for all. Here at the FWU-WLC, we value such power of imagination as we engage in education and research.

We heartily welcome you to join our endeavor to serve as the regional hub for developing women leaders and to this opportunity of exchanging ideas. Let us all imagine what is not yet.

Keynote Address

"Unleashing the 'Self' to Lead, to Imagine What Is Not Yet"

Kazuo WAKAMIYA

uni'que Founder / Art Thinking Curator /
Visiting Professor, Fukuoka Women's University

Having worked for an architecture firm, Mr. Wakamiya went on to study aesthetics at the Faculty of Letters at the University of Tokyo, to further explore art at the Graduate School of Humanities and Sociology. While at NTT DoCoMo, then at DeNA, he spearheaded a number of new projects, and in 2017 founded his own company "uni' que", to be awarded "The 2018 Sugoi Venture (the "wow" start-ups) 100". He has written and spoken extensively on start-ups, art-thinking, diversity and communities. He is the author of "Hau Tu Art-Thinking (hows on art-thinking)" and "Art Shikou Doriru (drills on art-thinking)".

Addresses

Yumiko TAMURA

Acting Representative, Asian Development Bank (ADB) Japanese
Representative Office (JRO)
MA in International Economics, Aoyama Gakuin University

Since joining ADB in 1998, her career largely focused on the Mekong countries including 7 years in Viet Nam and 3 years in Myanmar where she led the preparation and implementation of the country partnership strategy, in-country regional cooperation and integration activities, and other development assistance initiatives. As an advisor to the General's, she was involved in ADB-wide strategic matters while in Director General's offices for Southeast Asia and East Asia, she was responsible for all resources management, knowledge creation and sharing, and OneADB activities.

Yukiko MOTOMURA

Deputy Chief, Editorial Board, The Mainichi Newspapers /
Visiting Professor, Fukuoka Women's University

Born in Kitakyushu, Fukuoka, Ms. Motomura studied psychology and communication at Kyushu University, and started her journalist career at the Mainichi Newspapers' Kyushu Head Office. Winner of the 2006 Science Journalist Awards (JASTJ Awards), she has been renowned for her work in science communication to the public. Her most recent work is "Kagaku No Torisetsu (how to approach science)", a full-of-wit, easy-to-read essay on everyday science. Her personal account as a cancer survivor has touched many of those in suffering.

Our History

There were enormous challenges in becoming a university, including fund-raising and licensing procedures. Both the Ministry of Education and the Prefectural Government of Fukuoka initially backed the idea of creating a two-year junior college rather than a four-year university. Nevertheless, the teaching faculty, alumnae, students, and the local community imagined in chorus and worked for what was not yet, resulting in the status being raised to a four-year university. Had it not been for their imagination and work, we would not have become what we are.
